They are situated immediately adjacent to the Port of Rosyth and the former naval dockyard and, in addition to this, the surrounding area is characterised by a mix of industrial and office facilities.

The location benefits from excellent road transport links being situated a short distance from the M90 and the area has seen significant improvements since the opening of the Queensferry Crossing in 2017.

The town of Rosyth has been developed around the local naval base on the north bank of the Firth of Forth. Rosyth is situated a few miles to the south of Dunfermline, close to the Queensferry Crossing and the Forth Road and Rail Bridges. The town enjoys good transportation links lying adjacent to the M90 motorway as well as having a branch line railway station on the Fife Circular line connecting into the main Aberdeen to Edinburgh railway at nearby Inverkeithing.

The location of the subjects is shown on the appended plan.
